South Korea prez stuns world with martial law

Army takes control; Parliament passes resolution seeking its lifting

SEOUL

South Korea's National Assembly passes resolution calling for lifting of martial law.

Earlier, South Korea's President Yoon Suk Yeol on Tuesday declared martial law, accusing the opposition of being "antistate forces" and saying he was acting to protect the country from "threats" posed by the North. The National Assembly was sealed late on Tuesday night and helicopters were seen landing on the roof, as army chief General Park An-su took charge as martial law commander and immediately issued a decree banning "all political activities".

Hundreds of protesters gathered outside parliament demanding to be let inside as police guarded the building and special forces attempted to enter. South Korea is a major ally for the United States in Asia, and a spokesman for the US National Security Council said Washington was "monitoring the situation closely".

Yoon's stunning announcement – South Korea's first declaration of martial law in more over the budget.

"To safeguard a liberal South Korea from the threats posed by North Korea's communist forces and to eliminate anti-state elements plundering people's freedom and happiness, I hereby declare emergency martial law," Yoon said in a live televised address to the nation. Yoon did not give details of the North's threats, but the South remains technically at war with Pyongyang.

"With no regard for the livelihoods of the people, the opposition party has paralysed governance solely for the sake of than 40 years – came as his his impeachments, special investiparty and the opposition bicker gations, and shielding their leader from justice," he added.

"Our National Assembly has become a haven for criminals, a den of legislative dictatorship that seeks to paralyse the judicial and administrative systems and overturn our liberal democratic order," Yoon said.

With martial law imposed, all military units in the South have been ordered to strengthen their emergency alert and readiness postures, Yonhap news agency reported.

The decree by martial law commander Park also banned "actions that deny or seek to overthrow the liberal democratic system, including the spread of fake news, public opinion manipulation, and false propaganda".

The president labelled the opposition, as "anti-state forces".

In tit-for-tat, China bans mineral export

BEIJING said on Tuesday it would restrict exports to the United States of some key components in making semiconductors, after Washington announced curbs targeting China's ability to make advanced chips.

Among the materials banned from export are metals gallium, antimony and germanium, Beijing's commerce ministry said in a statement that cited "national security" concerns.

Exports of graphite, another key component, will also be subject to "stricter reviews of end-users and end-uses", the ministry said.

"To safeguard national security interests and fulfil international obligations such as nonproliferation, China has decided to strengthen export controls on relevant dual-use items to the United States," Beijing said. "Any organisation or individual in any country or region violating the relevant regulations will be held accountable according to the law," it added. In its own latest curbs, Washington on Monday announced restrictions on sales, without additional permission, to 140 companies including Chinese chip firms Piotech and Si-

Carrier. They also impact Naura Technology Group, which makes chip production equipment, according to the US Commerce Department. The move expands Washington's efforts to curb exports of state-of-the-art chips to China, which can be used in advanced weapons systems and artificial intelligence. The new US rules also include controls on two dozen types of chip-making equipment and three kinds of software tools for developing or producing semiconductors.

Beijing swiftly vowed to defend its interests, saying the United States "abuses export control measures" and has "hindered normal economic and trade exchanges".

And on Tuesday, China said Washington had "politicised and weaponised economic, trade and technological issues" as it unveiled its own export curbs. The moves also restrict the exports of "dual-use items to United States military users or for military purposes", Beijing said.

China accounts for 94% of the world's production of gallium – used in integrated circuits, LEDs and photovoltaic panels - according to a report by the European Union published this year.

For germanium, essential for fibre optics and infrared, China makes up 83% of production.

Beijing last year had already tightened restrictions on exporters of the metals.

No massive pay package for Musk, reaffirms judge

A Delaware judge reaffirmed her ruling that Tesla must revoke Elon Musk's multibillion-dollar pay package.

Chancellor Kathaleen St Jude McCormick on Monday denied a request by attorneys for Musk and Tesla's corporate directors to vacate her ruling earlier this year requiring the company to rescind the unprecedented pay package. McCormick also rejected an equally unprecedented and massive fee request by plaintiff attorneys, who argued that they were entitled to legal fees in the form of Tesla stock valued at more than $5 billion.

The judge said the attorneys were entitled to a fee award of $345 million. The rulings came in a lawsuit filed by a Tesla stockholder who challenged Musk's 2018 compensation package.

Following the original court ruling, Tesla shareholders met in June and ratified Musk's 2018 pay package for a second time, again by an overwhelming margin.

Defence attorneys then argued that the second vote makes clear that Tesla shareholders, with full knowledge of the flaws in the 2018 process that McCormick pointed out, were adamant that Musk is entitled to the pay package. They asked the judge to vacate her order directing Tesla to rescind the pay package.

McCormick, who seemed skeptical of the defense arguments during an August hearing, said in Monday's ruling that those arguments were fatally flawed. "The large and talented group of defence firms got creative with the ratification argument, but their unprecedented theories go against multiple strains of settled law," Mc-Cormick wrote in a 103-page opinion.

Nato's priority is to help Kyiv: Rutte BRUSSELS

NATO Secretary-General Mark Rutte on Tuesday sidestepped questions about Ukraine's possible membership in the military alliance, saying that the priority now must be to strengthen the country's hand in any future peace talks with Russia by sending it more

Rutte's remarks, ahead of a meeting of NATO foreign ministers, came days after Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy said that extending alliance membership to territory now under Kyiv's control could end 'the hot stage" of the almost 3-year war in Ukraine, where Russian forces are pressing deeper into their western neigh-
